SOMETHING NICE FOR BREAKFAST.

Why, yes, ma'am, here is some splendid bacon.

It is wonderfully toothsome, mild, sweet and as healthful as anything you could eat.

NO MA'AM it isn't just the same as the rest—Quite a bit different.

This Bacon started to be good before it was Bacon, the breeding you know, then the feeding.

Cured more carefully than most Bacons, too.

Really, we don't think you will be able to find anything anywhere QUITE so nice for breakfast.

SEVERE STORM.

A severe wind and hail storm visited the county Tuesday afternoon, and inflicted serious damage on crops. Several tobacco growers have reported hail losses and in some instances, the hail was so severe as to damage corn.

BACK ISSUES WANTED.

Will some of our good readers kindly furnish us with a few copies of the Central Record of June 22nd and July 13th date. We have exhausted our supply and need these two issues badly to complete our files.

PAINT LICK WINS AGAIN.

The second team at Paint Lick defeated the first team of Silver Creek on the former grounds last Saturday by a score of 13 to 9. The first Paint Lick team also defeated by an enormous score the Railroad team at Danville on that day. This was played on the latter ground.

BUY FINE CATTLE.

Messrs A. T. Sanders and John Miley Amon have recently purchased a herd of five Aberdeen-Angus cattle from the Long Stock Farm, at Shepherdsville. These cattle are from the latest strain from Scotland, and among them is a male calf, whose sire and dam are both champions, and have never lost a show. The price paid for the herd was $1800.

ANTIOCH SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Sunday July 23rd our school had 110 in attendance, and has been running around this number for some time. Most of the community has become enlisted in the work. On the 23rd six came forward to confess Christ as their Saviour. A series of meetings will begin Sunday evening, July 30th at 7:30 o'clock. I have never seen better conditions to receive a great blessing. Everybody invited to come, come praying that the Lord may give us a great blessing and to him be all the glory.
J. F. Holtzclaw, Supt.

METCALF ON STAND.

A dispatch from Noblesville, Ind., this week said: R. H. Metcalf, of Paint Lick, Ky., on trial here, charged with having accepted a check for $6,700 while President of the Farmers and Merchant's Bank of Cicero when, it is alleged, he knew the institution to be insolvent, will go on the stand this week in his own behalf, the attorney announced. "I am going to how close to the line, let the chips fall where they may," the defendant said. "I am going to tell the truth. I won't attempt to shield myself, and certainly will not shield those who are responsible for this condition."

EXTENSIVE IMPROVEMENTS.

The Arcade Garage under the management of the Kinnaird Brothers is making extensive improvements in the way of building and equipment. They are now adding a forty foot addition to their present quarters, which will make room for their Vulcanizing machine which will be installed this week. This will be run by Ray Whitten, an expert mechanic, who has been working in the last few years at the Hupmobile factory at Detroit. This machine will repair casings of all sizes and the Garage guarantees that vulcanized patches will outlast other bars of the tire. They have also installed a free air tank with tubing running to the street.

We will buy your wheat, store it, or exchange it for First Patent Flour.
Hudson, Hughes & Farnau.

The President of the Womens Club request that every member meet at the Club Room on Friday afternoon at four o'clock.

DANVILLE FAIR.

The Danville Fair begins next Wednesday and needless to say, it will be attended by many people from this county, as in former years. They have offered a fine premium list and this with other attractions will insure a fine and successful Fair.

HARRODSBURG FAIR ON.

Good crowds from Lancaster and Garrard county are attending the Mercer county fair at Harrodsburg this week. No better county fair is ever held in the state and we predict a record breaker this year. Smittie's band so well known here, will furnish the music.

BIG LUMBER DEAL.

Messrs Sib Sebastian, Lewis Murphy and Floyd Humphrey have recently purchased of Mrs N. Dean, of Jessamine county, one hundred and twenty-nine white oak trees at a total cost of $1,400. These trees will average about 1400 feet to the tree and have been sold to J. D. Hughes, at High Bridge, for $20, a thousand feet.

MRS. GILL'S WILL PROBATED

The will of Mrs. Pattie Duncan Gill was admitted to probate in the county court here last Monday. The will was dated April 12th, 1902 and was written in her own hand. After all her just debts are paid, she bequeaths to her only daughter, Mrs. Juliet Barnard, the remainder of her entire estate and makes her the sole executrix without bond.

BALLOTS BEING PRINTED.

This office has just received the official order from the County clerk to print the official ballots for the primary election which takes place next Saturday week, August the fifth. The Democratic ballot will contain the names of Hon. Harvey Helm and Senator Chas. Montgomery, candidates for the nomination for congress from the eighth district. The Republican ballot will have two candidates also to choose from and the race on this ticket is between Hon. R. L. Davidson and Thos. Neat.

New Crop, 1916, Crimson Clover seed for sale. Old seed will not germinate properly.
Hudson, Hughes & Farnau.

THREE CANDIDATES

For Congress Here Last Monday.

There were three candidates for Congress here last Monday and Stanford had the honor of furnishing two of them. They were Hon. Harvey Helm, Senator Chas. F. Montgomery and Dr. R. L. Davidson. None of them let any grass grow under their feet and all seemed pleased with the days work and each felt that he had the nomination nailed down.

Saturday week will tell the tale. Let the best man win.

SCHOOL PER CAPITA $5.10.

The school per capita in Kentucky this year was fixed Saturday at $5.10 by Superintendent of Public Instruction Gilbert. This per capita is a reduction of 15 cents per child of school age in the state from last year. The per capita is based on an estimated revenue for school purposes for the state at $3,761,785. The average for teacher per month will be about $46.25. The school census for 1916 shows a gain of 2410 children of school age over the census of 1915. According to the census report compiled by the Department of education there are 743,487 children in Kentucky between the ages of 6 and 20 of which 667,002 are white and 76,485 are negroes. Of this number 112,841 whites are listed in the cities and 604,323 in the rural and graded districts; 23,323 negro children are listed in the cities, and 51,386 in the rural and graded districts.

CHANGES IN SCHOOL LAWS.

A number of important changes were made in the school laws of the State by the last legislature, applicable to Garrard county as well as other counties of Kentucky, which have just become effective. For instance, the annual election of school trustees under the revised school laws, will in the future be held on the first Saturday in October, instead of the first Saturday in August, and the incumbents hold office until next March. Other changes may be summarized as follows: The school census will be taken biennially; under the compulsory school law parents and guardians may be put in jail for failure to pay fines assessed for not sending children to school; the amount of money a county may spend for children is increased from $100 to $200; counties may erect joint high schools; graded districts must maintain a high school or pay tuition for their graduates, and the graded district trustees may increase the tax from 50 to 75 cents and the poll tax from $1.50 to $2.50; railroad and bridge taxes due special districts are collected by the county school department instead of the sheriff, and students entering the high school at twenty years of age may continue through the course.

TEACHERS INSTITUTE.

Garrard Teachers Meet Week Of July 31.

The Institute for Garrard County teachers will begin next Monday and will continue throughout the week, the sessions being conducted in the Auditorium of the Lancaster Graded Schools. The Institute will be in charge of Miss Jennie Higgins, County Superintendent of Schools, and she has secured Dr. McDougal of the Richmond State Normal School as Instructor. One of the features of the Institute will be an address Wednesday at two thirty by Dr. Ganfield, President of Central University. He will speak on some phase of educational work and the public is invited to attend this lecture as well as all other sessions of the Institute.

Mrs. Dillingham of Harrodsburg has been secured to direct the musical program of the week.

FARMER MEETING

Held At Court House Monday. Many Farmers Of The County Express Wish For Farm Demonstrator.

The meeting called for last Monday for the farmers of the county, brought out quite a number of the most progressive farmers to discuss the advisability of getting a farm demonstrator for Garrard county. The meeting was called to order by G. B. Swinebroad and on motion W. R. Cook was made chairman and R. L. Elkin, Secretary. Mr. Swinebroad stated the object of the meeting and gave many good reasons why a farm demonstrator should be had in this county, and the many advantages to be derived from this progressive movement. He cited many counties of the state where they are being employed and spoke of the rapid progress such counties had made under the supervision of a farm agent. Several spoke of the advantages to be gained and of the work such method had accomplished in other parts of the state. Among those who spoke were: F. M. Tindler, E. C. McWhorter, J. E. Robinson and Judge C. A. Arnold.

The expense of employing one of the demonstrators is from $1200 to $1800 a year, one half of which is shared by the government and the other half is usually put up by the fiscal court. A committee composed of G. B. Swinebroad, E. C. McWhorter and W. R. Cook, was appointed to wait upon the Fiscal court and ask that an appropriation be made from the general fund to aid in securing this agent. This committee to report back at a call meeting of the chairman.

"Garrard county is by far the best producing county in the state and I am heartily in favor of the movement to employ a farm agent," said Mr. E. C. McWhorter, who has seen the effect of such work in the mountain counties of the state.

COURT DAY DRAWS

FAIR CROWD.

Only a medium sized crowd attended Court Day here Monday, and stock sales were slow. Several mules and a few cattle changed hands. Politics was the order of the day and three candidates for Congress were here presenting their claims to the voters. Both State Senator Chas. Montgomery and Representative Harvey Helm, the Democratic candidates feel sure of winning and Robert Davidson of Stanford who is a Republican candidate against Chas. Neat of Columbia, says that his name will be on the ballot in November.

THE FARMER

HOLDS THE BAG.

When the Kentucky Rural Credit Association went to the wall, many farmers and other citizens of Kentucky, and among whom are many Garrard county farmers, were swindled out of several hundreds of thousands of dollars. Somebody stole and somebody has been robbed. An investigation by the courts should be had and the guilty parties, be they high or low, should be punished.

It may be proven that it was the slick agents who sold the stock to the farmers or perchance it may be men high up in political and business life, or it may be both; at any rate the people have been robbed and the guilty ones should be punished.

HUNTERS TAKE NOTICE.

This Agreement Witnesseth: That in order to protect the game on our lands for a period of three years we bind ourselves not to hunt thereon, nor permit anyone else to do so, and we further agree to prosecute with diligence all persons who violate the game laws of Kentucky or trespass upon our lands for the purpose of hunting. And we further agree to act as Deputy Game Wardens for the purpose of carrying out this agreement. Except each of us have the right to kill rabbits on our farms or permit it to be done by another under our supervision, or the supervision of some responsible and reliable person selected by us.

KENTUCKY NEWS CUT TO THE QUICK FOR BUSY READERS

Winchester has been selected as the place for the opening of the state Democratic campaign on September 9.

George L. Sehon has been re-elected Superintendent of the Kentucky Children's Home Society.

The State Historical Society has moved into the old State House at Frankfort as permanent quarters.

Near Gates, in Rowan County, Henry Eden, 18, shot and killed his father. The boy claims that it was accidental.

Col. J. Embury Allen, of the Second Regiment, was dismissed from the National Guards as physically unfit.

In Louisville $308,000 has been subscribed toward $1,000,000 fund to encourage factories.

Armour & Co., of Chicago, has established a distributing plant in Louisville. It is planned to manufacture one million pounds of butter monthly.

Brig. Gen. Roger D. Williams, in command of the Kentucky National Guard, was elected a member of the National Defense League in Washington.

Mrs. E. R. Thomas, formerly Miss Linda Lee, of Louisville, was robbed of an $18,000 necklace and $700 in money on the streets of Montreal, Canada.

G. B. Likens, of Hartford, has been appointed as special attorney under the Attorney General of the United States with headquarters in New York City.

The Christian-Coe Medical Society adopted resolutions advocating universal military training and urging legislation to this end, "not for preparedness, but for public health."

The executive committee of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky appropriated $1,000 for the expenses of the golden jubilee of the University to be held at Lexington in October on the occasion of the Kentucky-Vanderbilt football game.

In the Paris police court, Taylor Smith, a 17-year-old colored boy, was fined $50 and given a sentence of ten days in jail for having in his possession twenty quarts of whiskey which he could not prove was for personal use.

Although the Kentucky Rural Credits Association has received over $300,000 during the year it has been in existence and $150,000 of this is admitted to have gone into its treasury, it had only $500 in cash when it was placed in the hands of a receiver at Lexington.

Fort Thomas was under quarantine for several days owing to a mild case of small pox which developed in one of the members of the Second Regiment from Jackson. He and his company were isolated and every precaution was taken to prevent any spread, which was readily prevented.

With only forty-five minutes to spare in time to file his campaign expenses, Judge O. J. Kirk, candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals from the Seventh district, reached Frankfort. He used an automobile and chartered a special train at an expense of $300 rather than violate the law.

Two boys named Jackson were arrested at Blue Pond, near Hickman, by Jailer C. A. Murchison on the charge of bootlegging, fined $60 and sentenced to twenty days in jail. While Sunday school was going on they would come to the window, call men out and sell them whisky, the evidence showed.

Fish in large quantities are reported to be dying in the Brushy Fork creek, south of Carlisle. The dead fish are reported to have been found as far as the forks near Miller Station. Some farmers report the water in such a condition as a result of the fish dying that cattle will not drink it.

Mrs. Eliza Hart—"Granny" all the neighbors affectionately call her—celebrated her one hundredth anniversary at her home in Hopkinsville. She carries lightly the burden of her ripe old age, and save for her dimming vision, many a woman a quarter of a century younger would envy her faculties.

Moonlight schools will be established in Knox county with the beginning of the next scholastic year next month in an effort to stamp out the last vestige of illiteracy in the county. A gold medal is offered by Lieut. Gov. James D. Black to the county teacher instructing the largest number of adults during the year.

A good strike of petroleum in the Artemus neighborhood, near Barbourville, is creating much excitement and many operators are flocking into the field. The new well is several miles from any pool heretofore developed. Many thousands of acres have been leased and a number of new wells will be drilled during the next few months.

State Fire Marshal T. B. Pannell has called a state-wide meeting at Frankfort for July 27 to discuss means for the prevention of fire. Delegates have been invited from all municipalities. Fire Marshal Pannell has announced an aggressive policy upon taking office, and has made a number of stringent rulings which will make for cutting down the fire waste.

Hog cholera in three different herds has been discovered in the north-western part of Bourbon county by Dr. D. C. Hanawalt, a representative of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, who is working in conjunction with the Bourbon County Swine Breeders' Association. All three of the herds have been vaccinated and a thorough disinfection of the farms ordered.

One hundred and twenty employers have notified the Workmen's Compensation Board that they will operate under the provisions of the workmen's compensation act, which becomes effective August 1.

Fred W. Weitzel, receiver of the First National Bank, of London, was arrested by Deputy United States Marshal R. M. Young, on the charge of embezzlement of funds and held to the Federal grand jury at Covington under $5,000 bond.

Chief of Police K. H. Keach and K. D. Rogers, both of Dawson Springs, were shot and killed in an affray in that city. Keach fired only one shot, which was fatal to Rogers, and M. M. Logan, also of this city, fired the fatal shot at Keach. The trouble began when Constable Ferguson sought to arrest Keach. A warrant had been sworn out by Rogers.

After he is said to have raised a check from $4 to $15 to defray expenses of his elopement to Jeffersonville, Ind., with Miss Myrtle Brown, of Hobbs Station, Johnsonby he, Clairmont, killed himself following his marriage. Fear of prosecution is said to have caused him to borrow a shotgun and shoot himself through the heart.

An experimental farm on 15 acres of land at the rear of the Capitol, and owned by the state, will be operated by Nat S. Cohen, Commissioner of Agriculture. The land will be plowed up and planted in alfalfa. A rock quarry will be opened on the land owned by the Capitol, which slopes to the Kentucky River, and the crushed rock will be used as a fertilizer.

After having been sentenced to life imprisonment for the killing of Tom Stafford, in 1895, and after having been a fugitive for nineteen years, Martin Franklin, of Louisa, surrendered to the reformatory officials in Frankfort. He had been a member of the U. S. army during all the years. He was immediately pardoned by Gov. Stanley.

Kentucky was well represented at the International Rotary convention, held in Cincinnati, Louisville, Lexington, Paducah and Owensboro each sent large delegations of Rotarians. The Paducah delegates made a decided hit with a colored band with which they entertained visitors from all parts of the country, Canada and several foreign countries.

J. S. Eshelman, of Ohio, is the first of man to invade Clark county and the Bluegrass with a view to prospecting for the rich product that just now is being pumped out of the ground. Two adjoining counties, Powell and Estill, in paying quantities. Mr. Eshelman has just leased 1,000 acres in the southeastern part of the county and will begin drilling as soon as a rig can be put in place.

The city of Winchester will, through Congressman J. Campbell Cantrill, introduce a bill in Congress at once by which it hopes to secure permission to use the vast amount of water power that is going to waste over the dam at Lock No. 10, Kentucky river, near Winchester, at Ford. The city is negotiating to purchase the Winchester company, and will extend the mains to the Kentucky river, a distance of eight miles.

D. T. Matlack, of the firm of Matlack & Shropshire, horsemen, of Lexington, closed a deal whereby he purchased from Hub L. Stevens, thoroughbred breeder, his entire lot of brood mares. Mr. Matlack will cross them with his high-class saddle stallions and endeavor to produce a suitable cavalry horse for the United States army. The inability to secure good cavalry horses recently prompted Mr. Matlack to try the new cross.

The appointment of Senator D. H. Feake, of Trimble county, to be business agent of the University of Kentucky, probably will result in a third vacancy in the State Senate. He said that while he understood the two offices are not incompatible, it is a question of expediency and discretion. Senator Robertson, of Louisville, was appointed revenue attorney and resigned, and Senator George G. Speer, of Frankfort, is State Banking Commissioner.

B. E. Choate, a wealthy farmer, residing near Wingo, gave bond in Maysville in the sum of $2,500 for his appearance August 16 to answer a charge of having maimed Henry Campbell, who, Choate alleges, has been too friendly with a relative. Choate, it is said, met Campbell recently on the road near Wingo and held him at the point of a revolver, while Campbell chose between death and being maimed. Campbell chose the latter course and submitted to the operation.

Heavy lawsuits have been made recently on Kentucky insurance agents by outside brokers, writing in unauthorized companies, and field men and local agents of the state are becoming stirred up. The assistance of the state insurance departments is being invoked in the fight. A recent loss has also showed up some overhead writing, authorized companies having written business without the knowledge of their local agents. Tobacco and cotton lines are the principal targets.

Surgeon John McAllen, of the United States Health Service, is conducting a trachoma clinic at the Pikeville College at the request of the Pike County Medical Society, members of which are taking part in the clinic. The Kentucky Society for the Prevention of Blindness, the Kentucky State Board of Health and the Kentucky State Tuberculosis Commission each have a representative here, both to assist in the clinic and to seize the opportunities offered for arousing Pike county people to concerted action for the prevention, not only of blindness, but also of tuberculosis and other diseases.

Value of Simplicity.

Simple creatures, whose thoughts are not taken up, like those of educated people, with the care of a great museum of dead phrases, are very quick to see the live facts which are going on about them.—O. W. Holmes.

Don't Worry!

Health is oftener undermined by worry than by work. Lincoln wisely said that no man ever sank under the burden of the day. It is only when the burden of tomorrow is added, that the load becomes greater than a man can carry. Remember, then, to bear your burden a day at a time and don't worry.

Remarkable Brazenness.

On his crossed heart young Patrick had denied old Patrick's accusation of wrongdoing. Old Patrick was unconvinced. "Don't I know ye?" he said. "Ye look innocent enough, ye young scallywag, but looks is deceivin'. Ye're that brazen that ye could stand there an' lie till ye was black in the face without ever chingin' color!"

Third Man Needed.

Brewer was fond of quizzing his friend Johnson. So one day, while out walking together, he began his usual practice by remarking: "I say, Johnson, I believe if I had you tied to a piece of string and paraded you round the town, I should make money out of you." "Yes," remarked Johnson, "but you would have to have a man to shout at which end of the string the monkey was tied to."

Ukrainians.

The Ukraine, once the first republic in eastern Europe, has been divided between her neighbors. Russia holds its largest part, with some 28,000,000 Ukrainians; the Russian nationalities call that country Malorossia or Little Russia, and the people Little Russians. Austria-Hungary holds a much smaller number, 3,500,000 in eastern Galicia, 400,000 in Bukovina and 500,000 in sub-Carpathian districts of Hungary.

Proper Way to Look on Life.

Take life like a man. Take it as though it was—as it is—an earnest, vital, essential affair. Take it just as though you were born to the task of performing a merry part in it, as though the world had waited your coming. Take it as though it were a grand opportunity to achieve, to carry forward great and good schemes, to hold and to cheer a suffering, weary, it may be a heart-broken brother.—Charles H. Spurgeon.

Peculiar Wrapping Material.

In Bulgaria, one of the poorer countries, where even cheap German wrapping paper is hardly known, parcels are carefully wrapped up in large square linen or printed cotton, called a bukhta. The bukhta is an institution. The bread is brought wrapped in check cotton; the shoemaker sends your boots home in a gay-colored square; even the wedding presents for a bride are sent in a bukhta. It is returned to the sender (like a basket) by the messenger.

FOR SALE FARM

and Personal Property.

As executor of the will of Rebecca J. West and pursuant to said will probated in June 1915 by the Garrard County Court, I will sell her farm in Garrard County, Kentucky, five miles east of Lancaster, and one mile from the station of the L. & N. R. R. at Hyattsville, on the Kirksville and Hyattsville Turnpike on at two o'clock P. M., on the premises, rain or shine, as the said is made to settle her estate.

TERMS.—There is about 283 acres in said farm; about 130 acres on the east side of the turnpike and about 153 acres on the west side. Said land will be first offered in said two tracts, and then as a whole, and the bid or bids will be accepted, which will realize the most money; said land to be sold by the acre and to be surveyed and so paid for and conveyed subject to said survey.

Bonds with good security to be required of the purchaser, one half the purchase money to be due January 1st, 1917 and the other one half in two bonds or notes of equal amount due and payable in one and two years from January 1st, 1917 and to bear interest at 6 per cent per annum from January 1st, 1917. Possession to be given and deed made when first bond is paid on January 1st, 1917, seeding privileges given in the fall of 1916. A lien to be retained on said land to secure said bonds and notes.

There is on said farm a dwelling house with eight rooms and two porches, stock barn, crib and other outbuildings; also two good tenant houses, three tobacco barns and a pair of scales, splendid water and well watered, and the land is in a high state of cultivation, one half in grass. The farm will be sold first; after which I will also sell five work mules, one brood mare, one mule colt and the farming implements of all kinds. [No household or kitchen furniture to be sold.] All amounts under twenty-five dollars cash. Notes with good surety with interest from date due January 1st, 1917 for all amounts over twenty-five dollars.

Marion Johnston, who lives on the farm, will show it to prospective purchasers, and Col. I. M. Dunn will act as auctioneer.

Breaking The Law

By EDWARD T. STEWART

We detectives are supposed to get after those who break the laws. We are not supposed to break the laws ourselves. But I once became a law breaker. A young woman was held in the adjoining state under duress, and I was sent there to find a way to get possession of her.

Miss Lucy Schenck, who was but twenty years old, had no one to look to but her stepmother's second husband, Shepard, and he availed himself of the opportunity of her confidence in him to get her fortune into the hands of those from whom he could have it transferred to himself.

Lucy, finally suspecting that matters were not as they should be, employed a lawyer to look into the case. Shepard, learning of the fact, ran her off into another state and kept her in hiding. Her lawyer found out where she was and I was selected to go there and report some method of taking her away from Shepard.

I found that he was keeping her under the pretense that she was mentally incompetent. If her lawyer attempted to fight him by the law he would likely run her off to some other place, and even if he did not he had the police force in the town with him and a shyster lawyer who would take any method to evade the law. I therefore reported that the best way was to fight the devil with fire; that is to take an illegal course and kidnap the young lady.

Miss Schenck had a lover, who had succeeded in getting into communication with her by letter—that is, she had written him giving him the place where she was held captive. I asked that this young man, Hastings, should be sent to help me. He was naturally very much interested, and together we laid our plans. The automobile has proved an excellent means of effecting such purposes, and we concluded to use one.

Since Miss Schenck was not permitted to go out of the house, but was kept in it under the care of a middle aged woman, we were obliged to take the captive from her dwelling prison by force. So far as I could learn she was guarded only by the woman—her name was Saunders—but there was a man on the premises, supposed to be a butler, and I fancied he, too, was in the pay of Shepard, whose place of abode was in a house two or three numbers away from the one in question.

I dare not take any one except Hastings into my confidence, so I must needs rely on him alone for an assistant. Fortunately he was a good driver of an auto, and this was a great help. Our plan was a very simple one. We were to take the auto to the house. I was to ring the bell and when the door was opened was to push in, followed by Hastings. We were both to be armed and play burglar, going through the house as if looking for plunder, but really looking for the girl. As soon as Hastings saw her he was to make himself known and take her down and out to the auto, I joining him there.

We wished to do the job before the prisoner went to bed. We had learned which was her room and after dark watched for a light to appear in it. This occurred about 9 o'clock. Running the car up to the house, we began operations. The butler came to the door. I shoved a revolver against his breast, while Hastings dashed past us both and upstairs, throwing open Miss Schenck's door. Her duenna was with her, but Hastings frightened her by shaking a revolver in her face and, catching hold of her astonished sweetheart's arm, ran her down to the auto.

Meanwhile I had taken the key out of the front door and put it on the outside. I followed the couple, locking the door behind me, so that the butler would be kept within, but gained nothing by this, for the woman upstairs threw up a sash and shouted for help. While she was doing so the three of us were getting into the auto. Hastings started it, and we wheeled away, the cries of the duenna dying in the distance.

As bad luck would have it, Shepard was just going into the house in which he lived when the woman began her shouts. Seeing us get into the auto, he took in the situation, and as we dashed off he ran to us and jumped on to the footboard. I gave him a shove that tumbled him in a heap, but I saw him get up and follow us on a run. He kept it up till he came to an auto standing by the sidewalk, got into it and followed us.

I waited till we came to a narrow street and a house that was being built on one side of it; then Hastings slowed up just enough to enable me to jump out without being killed. I seized a plank off a board pile and, resting one end on the pile, blocked the way for the coming auto. When Shepard got out to remove the plank I seized him, downed him and, putting a revolver against his nose, held him till I heard others coming, then I jumped up and ran for it.

The delay I effected enabled Hastings to reach the state limits before any telephone message could be sent out to arrest him. But none was sent. Shepard knew he had lost, and fearing criminal prosecution vanished.

Hastings took Miss Schenck to her home. She recovered the bulk of her property, and I attended the wedding between her and Hastings. I have since always been a favorite of theirs, and they have done a great deal for me and my family.

All of which I naturally attribute to gratitude.

A Study For A Painting

By F. A. MITCHEL

One day about noon a man whose dress and sketching materials marked him for an artist stopped at the door of a house in a western province of France and knocked.

"I would like a meal," he said. "Can you oblige me?"

"Ah, monsieur," replied the woman, who was evidently much troubled. "I have not a crust of bread in the house." The man looked at her sympathetically and asked whether, if he paid in advance, she would go out and get what would be required. She consented, and he handed her a bank bill for 25 francs. She told him that her husband was an artist, but he had not been able to make a name for himself and without a name he could not sell his pictures. They had fallen into debt and at that moment were expecting to be turned out of their home by their landlord, who held a chattel mortgage on their furniture which he would take to help pay what was due him for rent.

The stranger listened to all this, but said nothing in reply. He asked what line of art her husband occupied himself with, and she replied that he preferred figure painting. Some of his drawings were scattered about the room, and the stranger cast glances from one to the other. He said that he was a figure painter himself and was travelling through the country looking for a model for one of a group he needed for a picture.

When he had finished his meal he asked the woman if she could let him have a room in which to take a nap. She pointed to a lounge in a little room adjoining the living room. He went in there, drew a portiere between the two rooms and, throwing himself on the lounge, slept.

He was awakened by angry voices in the next room. Two men were talking. "You must get out at once," said one. "That I will do, and I will take my furniture with me. It belongs to my wife, and she will not part with it."

"If you gave me a mortgage on it as your property and it belongs to your wife you are a swindler." The stranger had meanwhile arisen from the lounge, lifted aside the portiere and looked out at the scene in the other room. The two men stood glaring at each other, while the woman was vainly endeavoring to hold one of them, her husband, who stood in a threatening attitude. The stranger had left his sketching materials in the hall and, hurrying there through a side door, brought them back to the room in which he had been sleeping and in a jiffy had set up his easel, placed cardboard on it, opened his box and, taking out a pencil, with the rapidity of lightning began to dash it here and there, making suggestive marks for figures.

One of the men—he was the landlord—made a tantalizing remark to his tenant, and the latter started with clenched fist to attack him. The woman caught her husband around the waist and, with a frightened look on her face, endeavored to hold him.

Again and again her husband tried to break away from her, she holding him as much by pleading with him as by force. In this way the relative situation was maintained for some minutes. Then, when the woman could detain her husband no longer and he broke away from her, the stranger threw down his pencil and, stepping into the room where they were, placed himself between the two.

"What is this man's indebtedness to you?" he asked the landlord.

"He owes me 2,500 francs."

The stranger drew his purse from his pocket, took out five 500 franc bills and handed them to the speaker.

"This takes all I have with me," he said, "except enough to get me back to Paris. Take it and give this man a receipt."

When the papers had passed and the landlord had gone both the woman and the man turned a grateful and inquiring look upon their benefactor. "How am I to pay you any more than the other?" asked the husband. "You owe me nothing," said the other. "You and the others have posed for me. The picture I shall make of this quarrel will be worth ten, perhaps twenty, times the amount I have expended. But I must get more material on the paper before the action has had time to fade from me."

Turning abruptly from them, he began to work anew with his pencil. His model looked over his shoulder and, struck with the action suggested by the few scattered lines, exclaimed: "There is in those lines the making of a great picture."

The stranger, after working awhile, gathered up his materials and said: "I am off for Paris. I will send you and your wife the wherewithal to follow me. I want you both and your landlord, if I can get him, to pose again for the painting I shall make from this outline. You," he added to the husband, "have talent. I have seen that in your pictures. I will be glad to have you for a pupil."

In due time funds came for the models, and they all, including the landlord, went to Paris. When they mounted the stairs that led to the studio they saw a card on the door on which was the name "Melosanol."

When the picture was finished it was pronounced one of several of the great artist's most wonderful productions. The pupil who began his studies at this time became one of France's noted artists.

EDUCATIONAL SURVEY OF GARRARD COUNTY BY ECONOMIC SPECIALIST.

Recommends Agriculture In High School
Also Domestic Science, Says Commercial Club Membership Should Be Extended To Adjacent Farmers.

Professor Charles D. Bohannon, head of the Department of Agricultural Economics, Experiment Station, has just made a report to the director on a social and educational survey of Garrard county. His conclusions apply to numerous other counties of the State and his recommendations can be of wide benefit. He writes in part:

"The survey demonstrated the following points:

"In order to provide for the fullest and best possible social, economic and educational development, there must be a hearty cooperation between town and country.

"While the country schools of the community are on a par with those of any other community in the State, there is altogether too large a dropping out of pupils between the first and eighth grades. Last year the figures as given by the county superintendent indicate an enrollment of 729 in the first grade, while in the eighth there was an enrollment of 78. This means that a large number of boys and girls in the highly impressionable years, between twelve and eighteen, are not receiving any public schooling.

"There is much room for improvement in the housing conditions among the poorer classes, both owner and tenants.

"While Garrard is undoubtedly a prosperous agricultural county, its economic conditions could be greatly bettered by increased attention to certain fundamental laws of agricultural science. The practice of permitting the erosion of fertile hill sides to go on unchecked is to be severely condemned. In the place of cultivated crops these hill sides might largely be turned into alfalfa fields. What alfalfa and ensilage will do in fattening cattle has well been demonstrated by some of Garrard's most up-to-date farmers.

"Most important of all, it was clearly demonstrated that there are within the city of Lancaster and in the adjoining rural districts a large number of men and women with high ideals of community life. These ladies and gentlemen who so quickly respond to all suggestions for the social and economic development of their county can, if properly united into working organizations, effect great advances within the next few years."

The following recommendations are made:

"First, that the membership of the Lancaster Commercial Club be extended to include the adjacent farmers and the scope of its work be broadened as to recognize in adequate fashion the interdependence of town and country.

"Second, that the installation in the Lancaster high school of a department of agriculture and a department of home science. The man who has charge of the agricultural department should teach agriculture and manual training in the high school and supervise their teaching in the country schools of the immediate vicinity. He should also act as advisor to the Commercial Club and aid in the development of boys' corn and pig clubs.

Similarly, the person having charge of the home science work should supervise the elements of that work in the country schools and develop the girls' poultry and canning clubs. These two lines of work should be of untold influence, both in town and country, not only in purely industrial matters, but also in the vital matters of sanitation and living conditions and general social conditions. In addition to the regular work, there should during the three months of December, January and February be held at the high school, short courses in agriculture and home science, primarily for the older boys and girls and young men and women of the country districts who for some reason or other have dropped regular school work. Special sessions of this short course could be thrown open to the general public."

In closing his annual report to Dr. Kastle, Professor Bohannon makes the following recommendations for the future work of the department:

"We should continue our study of the marketing of tobacco, and extend it so as to include the marketing of every type raised in the State. Since the price which the tobacco manufacturers are willing to pay is determined to such a large extent by two factors, namely, the perfection of the curing and the exactness of the grading, I feel that we should study these two factors in order that we may develop some plan or plans, whereby they may be controlled. To be specific, we should conduct curing tests to determine the value of various processes; in particular, the usefulness of various curing furnaces now on the market, and we should conduct a series of grading demonstrations in the various Burley counties, and we should continue our studies already begun of the effect of regrading on the price of poorly graded tobacco leaf.

"While tobacco is very important we should not devote our attention so exclusively to this as to preclude our rendering assistance with other products we should, next January, launch a campaign for the organization of wool pools in each county producing enough fleeces to warrant such cooperative endeavor.

"We should seek constantly thru the press, by word of mouth and by correspondence, to teach the keynote of successful marketing, namely, the establishment of standardized grades for all farm products.

"We should not only in connection with tobacco but with every principal product, make studies of production costs.

"Since labor is the most important factor in production and since the improvement of this factor must come largely thru the education of our farm boys, we should make every possible effort to develop the work in agricultural education, which forms an integral part of this department's work."

We are authorized to announce Hon. Harvey Helm, of Lincoln county, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress, in this, the eighth district of Kentucky, subject to the primary to be held August 1916.

Editor Fitzhugh, of the Wilmore Enterprise, hits the nail on the head in the following interesting article which we here reproduce:

"Those who have read the adventures of J. Rufus Wallingford, depicting the ease with which that smooth gentleman separated suckers from their money, to his own use and benefit, will be struck with the similarity between his methods and those of one O. L. Van Lanningham, in hypnotizing alleged able business men into being dupes—unconsciously, let us hope—in a skin game wherein—under the aegis of their supposed business acumen and eminent respectability—he and his various Blackie Daws, who operated under him, scooped in over two hundred thousand dollars from a too trusting public and then departed with the loot for other fields of endeavor; leaving a bankrupt concern, with an unsavory reputation behind them.

"The history and fate of the Kentucky Rural Credit Association is a striking illustration; not only of the ease with which a fool and his money are parted, under the smooth guidance of an expert; but of the willingness of men to lend their names to give weight to a proposition, impossible of success, but with glittering promises, backed up by large salaries.

"Conceived and organized in Delaware for use in Kentucky, it started out with the seeds of death in its body before it began operations. In the beginning it entered into 'an unfair and ruinous contract,' so stated by its own officers, whereby Van Lanningham was to sell the stock, to be paid for in four equal installments, of which the first or 25 per cent, was to be his commission. It does not take a very profound intellect to reason that the promoter in the sale of this stock was centered in collecting this first payment, which he converted to himself. Having no interest in further payments—and indeed in the corporation whatever—it is but natural, that in order to get this first payment, representations and promises, not in the contract furnished him, were freely made and entered into to tease and harass the management later.

"Such a contract would seem sufficient handicap to break down any company which depended on the prompt receipt of its stock subscription to furnish it money with which to carry on its business and pay its expenses and was undoubtedly the main rock on which it split. But it was not the only one.

"In addition to the ruinous agreement with Van Lanningham, the company started off blithely without capital, but with a salary list that would stagger any large, established concern with an assured business. The President was allowed five thousand a year, the General Counsel, the Secretary and the Treasurer twenty-four hundred each, which added to various other generous salaries, brought the total operating expenses up to an appalling figure for a struggling infant. So tenaciously did some of these officers hold on to these salaries that, although in the last five months they were cut in two, when it had become apparent that the concern was already moribund, that the treasurer had to be cut off entirely before he could be induced to resign.

"The final wind up under a receivership with over $350,000 in stock sold and less than $500 in cash and no assets is an eloquent tribute to 'business acumen, in the management of a concern two years old, as well as to that of O. L. Van Lanningham. The latter gentleman might well furnish an interesting chapter in 'The New Adventures of Wallingford', which have lately shown wear and lack of originality. We cannot, just now, think of a parallel in fiction for 'the management'."

That Republicans like Republics are ungrateful was never more fully demonstrated than in their shabby treatment of Col. John W. McCulloch, of Owensboro, who was turned down for an untired and comparatively unknown man, whose party service does not compare with his. The position of National Committeeman is purely one of honor with no emoluments and yet it was taken from Col. McCulloch, who could always be depended on to raise and contribute to campaign funds when ever they were most needed, just because the timid heads of the party feared the charge that it was not honest in its anti-liquor declaration, if they had a distiller as one of their leaders. Col. McCulloch deserved better at the hands of the party he had served so long and so faithfully and those who think he was slaughtered for expediency are going to resent the treatment accorded him when they mark their ballots in November. There are some sores that won't heal, especially those so unnecessarily made.

The prospects of Democratic victory this fall grows brighter as the days go by and will continue to brighten as the voters more and more realize the fine work of President Wilson in keeping every promise and averting the horrors of war with honor and dignity to the country. Those in New York City who bet money on the election have shifted from two to one against Wilson to two to one in his favor, and leading politicians of New York say that Wilson is sure to carry Hughes' state by a good majority.

PEAK CHOSEN

Business Agent At University of Kentucky At $2,500 A Year.

State Senator David Howard Peak, of Bedford, at a meeting of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the University Wednesday afternoon, was elected business agent for that institution at a yearly salary of $2,500.

The salary is $500 less than that drawn by Hywel Davies, former business agent. Peak is to perform all the fiscal duties at the university until an auditor is elected. The office of comptroller is held by W. T. Lafferty, dean of the law school, was abolished. Enoch Grehan, head of the school of journalism, was appointed secretary of the board of trustees.

Peak can, if he desires to do so, continue as State Senator until the expiration of his term, but he can draw only one salary.

THE WINCHESTER OPENING.

A representative of this paper attended the mass meeting at Winchester Monday to take steps to make the Democratic State Campaign opening there early in September an occasion never to be forgotten in the history of toe Kentucky. It was a most enthusiastic gathering of Democrats which filled the spacious circuit court room to the doors, many having to stand, after the extra supply of chairs had been taken. County Chairman John M. Stevenson explained the object of the meeting and called to the chair Hon. J. E. Garner, who had previously been selected general manager and chairman of the committee of arrangements, who made an inspiring and eloquent recital of Clark county's former efforts and promised to more than eclipse them in the coming event. Senator Abram Renick, Hon. T. G. Stuart and other leading citizens made short addresses pledging their hearty support while many farmers said "put me down for a fat bullock," "a pair of fat lambs," "several sheep," and other things galore. Committees for every necessary purpose were appointed and the consensus of opinion was that the $5000 necessary for the big barbecue would be more than subscribed and those who know the Democracy and the ambition of the people of Winchester and Clark county feel sure that no one will be appealed to in vain. Everybody, Republicans and what-nots will vie in the effort to put the best foot foremost and prove the wisdom of Campaign Chairman James Campbell Cantrell in accepting the invitation to have the opening of the state campaign there. Winchester is an ideal point for the gathering of a large crowd. The L. & N. runs lines in six directions and the C. and O., in two, thereby enabling people to come from all parts of the state and especially from the eastern section which has been somewhat neglected in the spread of Democratic doctrine. The mountain people will be there from as far back as the salt works on bitter creek and Democracy will have free course and be glorified.

The opening will likely occur on the 5th of September, the day after the dedication at Hodgenville and it is expected that President Wilson, who is to be principal speaker there, will be induced to stop over on his return to Washington and address the assemblage.

An invitation is extended to the voters all over the state to attend, assured of a warm welcome and an intellectual and physical treat, as the most distinguished speakers will be on hand and burgoes and other good things will be as free as the pure air of the section. "No one shall go away feeling that he has been neglected, but all will be made to sing the praises of their hosts," will be the motto, says Chairman Garner and his crew of capable assistants.

HERRINGTON

Promoter Denies Rumors Regarding His Dam Proposition.

The Lexington Herald says: L. B. Herrington, of Richmond, president of the Dix River Power Company passed through Lexington yesterday on his way to the site of the proposed dam on Dix River to inspect the diamond drilling being done at the proposed dam site in order to determine openings in the rock formation and to determine whether the foundations for the proposed dam are good. When asked for a statement regarding a recent statement in an afternoon newspaper of the construction of the dam, Mr. Herrington said:

"The newspaper reports were erroneous, unauthorized and very annoying to the gentlemen who are interested in the Dix river dam project. Final steps are not being taken in the matter of building the dam, and we are not hopeful of being able to commence work of this magnitude as long as the foreign hostilities continue. We are perfecting our plans with a hope of being able to proceed when the war breaks. No Eastern capital has been obtained, Richmond and Danville, Ky., parties being the principal ones interested. We are at present doing some diamond drilling at the proposed dam site in order to determine whether there are any openings in the rock formations and whether the foundations for the proposed dam are good."

Use strong soda water with plenty of soap for cleaning windows. Rinse freely. Finish off with a succession of warm, dry cloths.

Jump at Disagreeable Task.

The longer you put off a disagreeable piece of work the more you will dread it. Tackle it on the spot. Get it at it and the dread all peters out.

May Prove Big Industry.

Philippine government scientists are studying a shrub which grows profusely in the islands, in the belief that camplur can be produced from it.

Valuable Submerged Forest.

A submerged oak forest covering several square miles, from which logs more than 100 feet in length have been taken, was discovered by Russian engineers while dredging a river.

Improved Coal Mixer.

Economy of fuel consumption in steamships often requires the mixing of two or more kinds of coal and an Englishman has invented a coal-barge that mixes coal as it delivers it into a bunker.

Even Germs Obey Laws of Gravity.

The influence of gravity upon bacteria in the air may be observed in various ways, in addition to its action within a limited area like a sewer or a room. Miquel found in some investigations in Paris that whereas on the Rue de Rivoli 750 germs were present in a cubic meter yet at the summit of the Pantheon only 28 were found in the same quantity of air.

United States' Kindergarten.

The word kindergarten, German for children's garden, means a school conducted on the theory that the earliest education of young children should be based on object lessons, exercises with toys, games and other activities calculated to interest them. This method was introduced by pioneer educators at New Harmony, Posey county, Indiana, in 1826. For some years this was the only kindergarten school in the United States.

Find Foe of the Locust.

Research by the Argentine department of agriculture has shown that a natural parasite enemy of the locust exists, and the department has recommended that the National Institute of Bacteriology and the section of applied zoology of the live stock bureau co-operate in a study and application of the best means to propagate this parasite as the most effective way of checking the ravages of locusts. The sum of 500,000 paper pesos ($212,300) has been appropriated for use in the campaign against locusts.

JAMES WHITCOMB

RILEY DIES.

Beloved Hoosier Poet Passes Away At Indianapolis.

James Whitcomb Riley passed away at Indianapolis Saturday night at ten thirty. The cause of his death was paralysis, from which he suffered a violent stroke Saturday morning.

The poet was the son of Reuben A. Riley, a lawyer and political speaker of Greenfield, Ind. The younger Riley could not be brought to the dull routine of school days, but he was wise in the lore of streams and fields. His mother, who was Elizabeth Narine, before her marriage, was a writer of verse.

Instead of preparing for the practice of law, as his father wished, the son apparently prepared for nothing, and when he left home, he turned itinerant sign-painter to make his living. What he carried from the little schoolhouse was some sympathetic knowledge of literature imparted by his teacher, Lee O. Harris, himself a poet.

For ten years, Riley roved the Ohio Valley, painting commercial signs on fences and farm, out-houses. He had the trick of brush and pencil, and cleverly drew sketches illustrative of the virtues of merchandise advertised in the signs he and his fellow artisans made to bloom on the roadsides. He was naturally musical, and shone as a fiddler in the villages at which his party stopped at night. He played for dances and at concerts in country hotels, and he wrote rhymes which sometimes found their way into the country newspapers.

He led this cheerful, free and easy life until late in the 70s, when he took employment as a writer for a newspaper at Anderson, Ind. He had now begun to write verse steadily, but with little encouragement from publishers.

In the early 80s, Mr. Riley settled in Indianapolis, and began writing verses in "Hoosier" dialect for the Indianapolis Journal, for a small salary. He sent some of his poems to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, and they received his praise. A volume was published, and "The Hoosier poet" began to win a public.

He was a graphic reader of his own verses, and for fifteen years, or until 1898, he made tours of the country, appearing in public entertainments with great success, both alone, and in association with the humorist, Bill Nye, who was his intimate friend.

Publication of books of poems year after year brought Mr. Riley wealth and wide recognition of his literary genius. Many of his poems are of imaginative fantasy or are gently philosophic. In 1902, he received the degree of Master of Arts from Yale University, and in 1904, the University of Pennsylvania conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Letters.

In July, 1911, the poet presented to the city of Indianapolis property valued at $75,000 for a site for a public library and school administration building.

Mr. Riley never married but he was a lover of children, whose spirit he divined so intimately, and of family life.

Household and kitchen furniture. Mrs. John Mount.

"I CAN NOW EAT ANYTHING; AM FREE FROM STOMACH ILLS", SAYS MRS. COLLINS OF McVEIGH, KY.

"I am sure the reason I feel so well today is because I took Tanlac and I want to give it a good recommendation," said Mrs. Cordia Collins, of McVeigh, Ky.

"Yes, I had a very serious case of nervous trouble. I was so run down that I really didn't know what to do. My blood was bad and I had spots on my face.

"Since taking Tanlac my nervousness has disappeared. I can eat anything I want and do not have bad after effects. It has given me lots of strength and I can do my housework again. I sincerely advise everybody to give Tanlac a chance."

Such statements as Mrs. Collins' should appeal to thousands that suffer from the same trouble.

Most people who have stomach ills, nervousness, liver ailments, kidney derangements and depression of spirits and who are in a general run down condition, simply need something to tone up their systems and to assist the vital organs in performing their natural functions.

Tanlac is a wonderful reconstructive tonic and produces the most gratifying results.

It is because Tanlac does the work and does it quick that its leap to higher success has been marvelous. That Tanlac surpasses all medicines as a reconstructive tonic has been proven in these columns by the leading men and women of the common wealth of Kentucky.

Tanlac is being introduced in Lancaster at R. E. McRoberts.

Tanlac may be obtained in the nearby cities. Paint Lick, J. N. Metcalf; Bryansville, Becker & Ballard; Little Hickman, Collier and Bruner; Berea, S. E. Welch; Stanford, Penny's Drug Store; Junction City, Reynolds and Evans; Richmond, H. L. Perry & Son; Crab Orchard, Lyne Bros.; Burgin, G. T. Schofield; Danville, John S. Wells, R. E. STORY OF A BRICKLAYER
By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS
John Bounce was a mason. That was before there were labor unions, and John did not get very good pay for his work and not much work, either. His wife was delicate, and there was a plentiful crop of children.
One day while John was laying brick a man stopped beside him and said: "My good man, would you like a little work to be done in the evening when you have nothing else to do?"
"I would if I got well paid for it," said John.
"Where do you live?"
John gave his home address, and when it was dark the man appeared. He told John that he must be blindfolded. John didn't like this, but the man laid a five dollar bill on the table and said that when the work was done he would give him double the amount. Seeing that there was nothing in the house to eat, John permitted the man to tie a handkerchief about his eyes, and, taking the other's arm, he was led forth on to the street, which at that hour was well nigh deserted.
While the visitor was in the house John Bounce's wife was in the adjoining room, where the children were asleep. When she saw her husband go blindfolded with the visitor, either fearing for John's safety or through curiosity, she followed the two. They went into the business part of the city and stopped before a building bearing a sign, "Hirnkimer & Co." John's conductor opened a door, guided John through it and shut the door behind them.
Mrs. Bounce was in a quandary as to what she should do. Had she best demand admittance for herself or call the police or wait till John came out? A few minutes' reflection assured her that John's employer needed some masonry done and there was no occasion to be alarmed. If she interfered he might lose the promised additional pay. She concluded to take no action in the matter, and, not caring to leave her children alone, she went home.
John was absent for two hours when Mary was gladdened by the sight of him and a ten dollar gold piece that he had brought with him. His employer had left him a short distance from his home. This is the story he told Mary:
His conductor had taken him to the basement of the building, where he had removed the bandage. Pointing to a recess in the wall, which John knew to be the base of a chimney, and some brick and mortar, ready for use, he told the mason to build a wall across the face of the recess. John went to work. Before he had put the last few bricks in the opening the man put in a box.
Whatever the object of concealment in this matter, all would possibly have been buried in oblivion till the crack of doom or for one or two centuries, when the building would be torn down, had it not been that Mary Bounce followed the two men. It was about a month after John's job was done that one evening after coming in from work he was reading a newspaper. Suddenly he looked up at his wife and asked: "What did you say was the name on the building I was taken to for work?"
"Hirnkimer & Co."
John looked serious. Mary asked him why he asked the question. He read aloud an article stating that the old established firm of Hirnkimer & Co. had made an assignment. They were prosperous till one morning on opening the safe the chief clerk had found that a large amount of negotiable securities and some $50,000 in cash had disappeared. The safe had not been broken into, and there was no trace of where the securities had gone or who had taken them. Several employees had the combination of the safe lock, and others might have got it from some of them. Detectives had been at work on the case, but had been baffled. None of the employees had absconded.
It did not take John Bounce long to arrive at the conclusion that he had walked up the missing securities. The next morning, guided by his wife, he went to the office of Hirnkimer & Co. and asked to see one of the firm. Both were conducted to the private office of Mr. Hirnkimer, and John, having carefully closed the door, told his story.
Mr. Hirnkimer at once took him down into the basement, but there was no artificial light there, and it was so dark that he was obliged to wait till a lamp could be procured. The place was vacant except for some lumber piled up against the chimney foundation, which had been closed up. John removed the lumber, assisted by the impatient Hirnkimer, and the newly laid brick stood out in contrast with the old.
John Bounce got a job at removing what he had so lately put in and soon took out the box, in which was discovered the missing property. No one except John and Mary Bounce and Mr. Hirnkimer knew of John's revelation and the finding of the missing property. But the head financial clerk saw John when he entered the office and immediately disappeared.
Hirnkimer & Co. at once resumed, and John Bounce became janitor of the building, with several watchmen under him. Not only did he receive a good salary, but was presented with a home. When the firm was incorporated he was given some shares of the stock.
The clerk who had hired John to lay the brick doubtless intended at some future time to take away the securities.

FREE ATTRACTIONS AT THE BLUE GRASS FAIR

1,000 IN PREMIUMS FOR HEREFORD CATTLE.
The management of the Blue Grass Fair, desiring to make the cattle department an outstanding feature of their annual exhibition, has increased the premium list to $1,000, with a revised classification for Hereford cattle.
This class, always a most interesting show, promises to be one of the best ever given in Kentucky.

ENGAGEMENT EXTRAORDINARY
Meyerhoff Attractions Carnival at the Blue Grass Fair Aug. 7-12.
One of the biggest features of the Blue Grass Fair will be the Meyerhoff Attractions Carnival, which is known throughout the entire country as being the largest and most gorgeous traveling aggregation on the road at the present time, carrying its own mammoth special train, consisting of twenty-eight cars.
This show has been built at a cost to its owner of over $150,000, each and every attraction having its own gorgeously designed carved wagon front. All of the shows carried are novel and unique and are noted particularly for their clean and moral nature.
The Feature Attraction carried is the Zoological Garden and Society Circus Combined, in which is given a clever exhibition of trained animals which will entertain and please all.
To be in keeping with the present time the Invasion of Belgium Show is worthy of special mention. This show consists of genuine relics brought direct from the battlefields of Europe and contains all the modern European implements of war that are used by the different countries now engaged. This attraction has created more sensational and meritorious comments by both press and public than any other traveling attraction ever presented in this country.
Next in line we have the International Diving Girls, well known throughout the country, giving daring and clever exhibitions in a six foot tank. The Ten in One, consisting of wonderful feats, is another good feature. Performing Seals, The Fat Lady, Athletic Show, featuring the Champion lady wrestler of the world, Miss Wallo, Illusion Show, featuring the Flying Lady, The Arabian Village and many other shows, including Merry-Go-Round, Ferris Wheel, and last, but not least, the newest 1916 riding device, "The Whip," makes up the aggregation which will be seen on the Midway of the Blue Grass Fair this year.

Swine and Sheep at the Blue Grass Fair.
A full quota and classification for swine and sheep has been arranged for the week of Aug. 7-12 at the Blue Grass Fair. The management was compelled to eliminate these classes last year on account of the foot and mouth disease then prevalent, but are pleased to reinstate them with a very attractive premium list.
Half Fare Rates to Fair.
Do not fail to visit the Blue Grass Fair at Lexington the week of Aug. 7 to 12. One fare rates will prevail on all railroads in Kentucky. Every afternoon and evening, beginning Sunday, Aug. 6, there will be magnificent band concerts, with high class vocalists in a grand concert.

SADDLE HORSES AT THE BLUE GRASS FAIR, LEXINGTON, KY., AUG. 7-12
SADDLE horses will be an important feature at Lexington this year. The Blue Grass Fair, to be held Aug. 7 to 12, will offer stakes and purses for all ages and classes of saddle horses; also for roadsters, fine harness horses, Shetland ponies and a full quota and classification for the three great breeding classes—standard bred, thoroughbred and saddle horses.

Woman's Department.
The Woman's Department of the Blue Grass Fair, to be held at Lexington Aug. 7 to 12, will be more important and extensive this year than ever before. The premium list has been revised, and classes offered cover almost every kind of woman's work and table luxuries. The third floor of the Art hall is given entirely to this department and is usually one of the most attractive exhibits of the Big Fair. Entries limited to Kentucky only.
Pari-mutuel Betting on All Races at the Blue Grass Fair Aug. 7-12.

WEBER MILITARY PRIZE BAND WILL BE HEARD AT BLUE GRASS FAIR
This Famous Musical Organization Has Twice Won Prizes In National Contests Against the Best Bands of America.

STATE UNIVERSITY EXHIBIT AT BLUE GRASS FAIR
Farm, Orchard and Garden Products at Floral Hall.
At the Blue Grass Fair, Aug. 7-12, the College of Agriculture of the State University will make an educational exhibit in the Floral Hall of farm, orchard and garden products and also many other material representations each intended to teach its lesson.
The exhibits include illustrative material from the department of Agronomy (soils and crops), Horticulture, Bacteriology, Animal Husbandry, Food and Drugs, Entomology, Veterinary Science, Dairying, Poultry, Home Economics, etc.
These exhibits are intended to teach by material representation the facts learned by experiments conducted at the Kentucky Experiment Station or by stations in other states.
The purpose of the whole exhibit is to instruct rather than merely to amuse or entertain the visitor. It is an easy matter to arrange beautiful fountains of grain in the sheaf and of other beautiful things that may have been selected from the farm, but such an exhibit does not give the spectator a beneficial idea that will help him when he returns to his farm. It is to fill this need for help that the exhibit of the Agricultural College is prepared.
Again, the work of conducting these exhibits is an effort on the part of the college to get into close personal contact with the farming public with the idea of mutual helpfulness. Representatives of the college will be in consultation. Bulletins on various farm topics will be distributed free of charge.

Increased Premiums at Blue Grass Fair.
The premium list of the Blue Grass Fair has been revised this year, and there is a very noticeable increase in nearly all classes for live stock. Cattle, swine and sheep have been reinstated, and the public can be assured of a big display in these classes. Outstanding among the features of live stock exhibit will be the Hereford Cattle Show, for which the Association is offering $1,000.00 in premiums.
The management has assurances of one of the greatest displays in the class that has ever been seen at any Fair.
Suckling Mule Stake.
Another feature is the stake for mules, foals of 1916, either sex for which the Association is offering a premium of $150.00. This will bring out one of the largest rings in the history of Fairs. Liberal provision has also been made for other classes of mules as well as Jacks and Jennets. Altogether the premium list for 1916 is the most attractive ever offered at the Blue Grass Fair, and copy of same will be mailed upon application to John W. Bain, Secretary, Lexington, Ky.

One of the best ways to kill wild garlic in pastures is to turn in sheep.

More rapid gains are made by pigs on good pasture, and the risk of sickness is also lessened.

Don't yank and abuse the horses for your own lack of wisdom.

By actual experiment it has been found that by feeding alfalfa hay with corn the cost of fattening pigs has been decreased almost one-half.

Lambs will begin to eat grain when about two weeks old.

Be sure that the mare is cool before she is put with her colt.

SAFEGUARD FOALS AGAINST ACCIDENT

Colts should not follow mares at work in fields during summer and fall. They should be left in clean stalls, paddocks or pastures where they cannot hurt themselves, writes H. E. McCartney in the American Agriculturist. Colts love company, and where there are a number of them on the farm they should be together while the mares are in the fields. Good sense and judgment must be used in allowing the youngster to suckle at noon and evening. It is very necessary to keep the colt free from accident. Wire cuts, nail pricks and bruises produce severe losses on many farms where colts are grown. To just the extent that a man keeps his colts free from accident he increases his profits. Old sagging fences must be straightened up, corner posts must be set, and broken boards with nails in them must be gathered up. Every pre-

Percheron horses are popular in the United States for several reasons, one of which is their disposition. They are even on their mettle, yet not nervous or fretful. They are free workers and seldom lose their heads. A headstrong Percheron is rare. The animal shown is a yearling Percheron stallion.

caution possible must be taken to guard against injury, because it means the saving of money.

Fires, too, must be guarded against by having the barn clean and by having manure piles and all breeding ground for flies cleaned up. Shelter from the hot sun in summer is another factor that increases the growth and thrift of the colt and increases the profit to the owner. It pays well to handle the colts the first summer. They should be broken to halter. Their feet should be picked up and, whenever they need it, trimmed. If they are handled the first summer much of the work of breaking later will not be necessary. Good care and management the first summer will cause the colt to become a bigger and better horse and a more profitable farm product.

Likes to Travel Against Stream.

The tendency to go against the stream is very strongly marked in a catfish, called argos, which forces its way up the torrential streams of the Andes, gripping with its mouth and using a toothed ventral plate as a lever. It can climb up many feet of smooth, water-worn rock.

Let's Find Our Friends.

It is about time to look the world over and see if we have any friends who can help us preserve free institutions intact on this hemisphere. If we have no friends, let us behave so as to deserve them. Let us acquit ourselves so that nations will see in us a desirable ally, and not a parasite for whom they are to pull chestnuts out of the fire.—Frank B. Vrooman, in the Century Magazine.

WATER FOR POULTRY.

Should Be Supplied Fresh, Often and in Abundance.

During the summer when it is extremely hot the water in the fountains should be changed several times a day, writes E. B. Templar in the Knickerbocker Press. If you doubt that the chickens notice the difference try this out for yourself. Remove the water from the fountain where it has been standing for several hours and has become warm and place therein some fresh cold water and note how the chickens will immediately crowd about the fountain for a drink. They need this as much as we do, and where they are deprived of it they suffer, and where you make conditions of this nature you will find that the chickens will not do as well. They will prefer to drink from any pool where water has settled after a rain, no matter how insanitary a place it is, than to drink the tepid water from dirty fountains.

These fountains should be cleaned with boiling water every few days to take away the impurities. Nothing is so quickly tainted as drinking water, and where the fountains are never scalded it is no wonder that there is sickness among the chickens. If you will take the fountains that are to be used for young and growing chicks and scald them you will at least be assured that there will be no mortality because of any disease that may be lurking in the old fountains.

Keep the water fountains in the shade. Change the water frequently and you will find that the chickens will prefer the fountains to the pools in the yard where the sanitary conditions are certainly not the best.

WEANING THE LAMBS.

Udders of the Ewes Should Be Closely Watched at This Time.

The weaning of the lambs should be given some thought. The time of weaning should depend upon the ewes and the lambs, says the Farm and Fireside. The lambs should be weaned between the ages of four and five months, but where the lambs are strong and growthy and the ewes thin they should be weaned earlier in order to allow the ewe to get into the proper condition for breeding. Where the lambs are backward and the ewes are thrifty they should be allowed to run with their dams for a longer period. At weaning time the ewes should be taken off feed that is very nutritious and succulent and given some dry feed that will stop the flow of milk. The udders should be closely watched. The ewes with a large supply of milk should be milked a few times to avoid spoiled udders.

At weaning time the lambs should be put on fresh, nutritious pasture with some grain. They should be separated far enough from their mothers that neither the lambs nor the ewes will be disturbed by the bleating. Lambs should be so handled at weaning that they will keep on growing and gaining in weight.

Success in sheep husbandry depends upon the man. Every farm should have a small flock of sheep. The size of the flock will depend upon conditions. If sheep are properly started and cared for they will prove a valuable source of income.

Care of Horses' Feet.

Most of the poor feet are due to improper care. A horse's feet should be trimmed at least every six or eight weeks. In trimming most of the work should be done with a rasp. If the nippers are used too much of the hoof is generally cut away, while if the rasp is used only a small amount is cut away at a time and the foot can be kept level.—Bulletin Kansas Station.

DAIRY and CREAMERY

COMFORT FOR THE COW.

Wise Dairywomen Will Protect Her From the Sun and Insect Pests.

A great essential necessary for large milk production is that the cow be comfortable. Needless to say, the one who has been unkindly of the persistent manner in which cows have worked day and night, who has profited from the full pail of milk and yet who has not realized that the mild temperature, the bright but not hot sunshine, the abundance of fresh air and the freedom from flies and insects have all contributed to the comfort of the cows and made it easy, even tempting, for them to work their hardest.

Now the sun is hot and flies come in swarms, says Kimball's Dairy Farmer. There will be no comfort, no peace, for the cow from morning until night. For Until about twenty-five years ago the Guernsey breed of dairy cattle was not so well known or popular as some of the other breeds. During recent years, however, the Guernsey has come to the front through sheer merit and today stands in the front rank of milk and butter producers. The cow shown is a pure bred Guernsey.

Self protection she will be compelled to hunt the pools of water or the shade of trees and use her energy fighting flies and keeping as cool and comfortable as she can. Under these conditions it is impossible for her to produce milk either largely or profitably no matter how well she may be fed. Rapidly she will decline in milk flow, never to return to the same high plane of production until she freshens again. Millions of dollars is the toll thus exacted by the flies, bugs and excessive heat from the men who milk cows, but do not protect them against these ravages.

To prevent this loss is not a difficult task, and each year finds more dairywomen following the course of wisdom. On farms where the campaign of swatting the fly is practiced the number of these pests is becoming greatly lessened. There are sprays that will keep those that remain away from the animals, and he who has his stable properly ventilated for winter use can easily darken it and provide quarters that will protect his cows from the blasting rays of the midday sun.

Here they can eat green feed or silage, make milk and rest comfortably preparatory to grazing the pastures at night, when the sun is on the other side of the world and the insects are asleep. This will incur some extra work and perhaps a little expense, but the question as to whether or not it will pay well has been conclusively answered in the affirmative by Dame Nature every year since the cow was converted into an artificial being with the ability to provide large volumes of food for mankind.

DRYING OFF MILKERS.

Large Producing Cows Must Be Handled With Care to Prevent Injury.

The customary method of drying off the average dairy cow is simply to omit every other milking until the milk flow diminishes and then stop milking. This will incur some extra work and perhaps a little expense, but the question as to whether or not it will pay well has been conclusively answered in the affirmative by Dame Nature every year since the cow was converted into an artificial being with the ability to provide large volumes of food for mankind.

High producing cows are more difficult to handle in this respect, and some dairywomen claim it is impossible to get their best cows to go dry. The first step to dry off an animal producing twenty pounds of milk a day or more is to change the feed. If she is on pasture remove her to a dry feed lot. If she has been receiving alfalfa or clover hay give her timothy or similar non-succulent feed. In winter time take away the grain.

Then milk at irregular intervals, and the flow will soon decrease. At the end of a week it will fall off about five pounds, and in a few more days milking may be stopped entirely. The udder will fill up, but in a few days the milk will be reabsorbed, and finally the udder will become normal. A rest of about six weeks is beneficial to the cow, and experience has shown that cows will have a greater annual yield if they are dried off instead of being milked up to the time of calving.

Black Nosed Guernseys. The black nose of a Guernsey does not indicate impure breeding. There are many splendid pure bred Guernseys with black noses. A few of the Guernsey breeders make considerable objection to Guernseys having black noses. It is rather a foolish habit that Guernsey breeders must contend with. There was a time when it was held that the Jersey must have a black tongue and a black switch, but this has passed, and we hope that the black nose will receive less attention in the future than it has in some instances in the past.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Charcoal For Poultry. A supply of finely ground charcoal is good health insurance for poultry. A teaspoonful of charcoal to each gallon of mash will prevent many a bad case of indigestion, which is the forerunner of the various liver troubles that annually carry off many a promising chick.

Making the Little Farm Pay

By C. C. BOWSFIELD

Potatoes continue to be one of the best of the money crops. This product is suited to farms of all sizes and is almost unsurpassed for profitability among ordinary field crops.

For some years there have been predictions that potatoes would not long remain a paying market crop, owing to probable overproduction. Nevertheless prices have averaged high, and production goes on. Michigan, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Maine and New York have potato crops upward of $10,000,000. The latter, in fact, has reached $23,000,000. Several other states are above $5,000,000.

In thousands of cases the potato crop has paid farmers at the rate of $100 an acre for more. This can be expected under favorable conditions, but not otherwise. An average of $50 an acre would be fair, and while the aim should be for the $100 mark, a return of $50 is better than any grain crop will do.

POTATOES ARE A GOOD MONEY CROP.

Soil that is sweet, well drained, full of organic matter and free from parasite life will give bumper yields of potatoes under systematic cultivation. When a farmer has such land he should do his best to bring on paying crops. Soggy or impoverished land is not to be used for potatoes.

One great advantage in raising potatoes is that they have high feeding value for live stock and poultry, so that the crop is not a loss no matter how low the market is. When a farmer has a heavy supply of potatoes he is able to sell off his grain more closely than he otherwise could. Potatoes boiled and mixed with mill stuff are an excellent ration for cattle, hogs and fowls. Culled potatoes should generally be used in this way. Both early and late varieties have special merits and work nicely in double crop schemes. A grower instead of experimenting with every variety that he hears of should get one or two kinds that are known to be good and stick to them.

The necessity for disinfecting seed potatoes is evident. All seed from unknown sources should be disinfected, as well as all concerning which there is the slightest doubt. One method of disinfecting is to soak the potatoes in a formaldehyde solution, a pint to thirty gallons of water. This is the best method for ordinary potato pests. If there is a large quantity to be disinfected a good way is to place them in an air tight room, laying the potatoes on trays or boards so that the air can get between them. Then for each 1,000 cubic feet of space use twenty-three ounces of potassium permanganate and three pints of formalin. Place the permanganate in a thin layer in the bottom of a pail three feet or more from the potatoes. Pour the formalin into the pail and let stand for twenty-four hours or longer.

If insects are known to be in the soil it is best to spray regularly Bordeaux as the most effective remedy for parasite diseases. Of chief importance is early spraying. The mixture for both insects and fungi is made as follows: Copper sulphate, five pounds; fresh lime, five pounds; water, fifty gallons, Paris green, one pound, or lead arsenate, three pounds. Those who have a large acreage can afford to keep a stock of this material on hand, using separate vessels for the lime and the copper sulphate.

Rotation of crops must be practiced in order to keep the soil clean. If fresh manure is to be used it should be applied the fall before, but well rotted manure may be applied in the spring. Lime should not be applied directly before planting. Experiments indicate that sulphate of potash produces a better quality than the muriate. Potatoes, which have a greater value per acre than other crops, will respond profitably to heavier applications of fertilizer. The fertilizer known as the 4-8-10 mixture is recommended as a good formula for potatoes. These prepared fertilizers will pay when used at the rate of 1,500 pounds per acre, one-half at the time of planting in rows and the remainder over the rows about the time the plants are coming up.

No farmer should depend on potatoes as an exclusive crop, but success will come by making them part of the mixed farming plan. The soil must be right and the seed reliable to get good results. With a little care on these points potatoes are likely to exceed the expectations of those who cultivate them.

Chickens in the Orchard. A flock of lively chickens in an orchard will pick up thousands of insects and worms and the eggs that hatch such insects. The eating of these will supply the chickens with animal food and do them lots of good, and at the same time it prevents the insects from damaging the trees.

POULTRY and EGGS

FEEDING FOR FEATHERS.

Half Grown Chickens Require a Generous Ration For This Purpose.

We know that during the first year of a chick's life the feathers are lost and renewed more than at any other time, writes a correspondent of the Albany Knickerbocker Press. It is essential, then, that these chicks have proper food for the growth of feathers and the bone material which makes up the frame of the chick.

We have found that a combination of wheat bran, oilmeal and beef scrap will help them very materially in growing feathers and bone. The wheat bran is usually fed in hoppers alone.

Among the general purpose fowls the Black Langshan takes high rank. Being of good size and possessing good laying qualities, it is an ideal breed for the farm. These fowls are of very gentle disposition, easily handled and the hens make excellent mothers. The bird pictured is a Black Langshan cock.

and they are permitted to eat what they will of it. This is kept before them from the very start. The oilmeal is mixed with the dry mash later on or when they are about two months old. The beef scrap is fed sparingly at first and increased as the chicks grow. It is well to say right here that it will pay any one to purchase the very best grade of beef scrap that they can secure—the best is none too good.

One thing that is often neglected is the providing of shade for the growing chicks. This should be arranged for regardless of what other work may demand your attention. The hot summer sun will soon spoil the plumage of your growing birds and take the luster from the feathers.

Change the water several times a day during the hot days of summer. The birds will appreciate it and will come along much better than though they were neglected in this particular. It is simply astonishing to note how much water a lot of young chicks will get away with. They are inveterate drinkers and need a constant supply.

The half grown flock should be gone through now and then and carefully culled. You can use the culls for broilers, which will bring you a good price at the market, and at the same time it will give the rest of the birds a better chance to grow, especially if you are cramped for room.

Furthermore the growing stock should be well graded. Do not let chicks of all sizes and sizes grow up together. The larger ones will crowd the smaller ones, and the result will be that they will not do nearly as well as though they were by themselves.

Admire of the Holstein breed of dairy cattle contend that this breed is capable of doing a greater volume of business—that is, milk production—at less expense than the other dairy breeds. The Holstein cow is kind, docile and has great capacity for converting roughage into dairy products. The cow here pictured is a pure bred Holstein.

Because they are good winter layers, desirable table fowls, mature rapidly and have rugged constitutions, the Rhode Island Red has become one of the most popular of American varieties of poultry. As market birds they stand high. The cock shown is a single comb Rhode Island Red.

or silage. Only a small amount is required at first, but as the drought comes on and the grass deadens the grain and succulent food should be gradually increased at a rate that the cows will continue to produce with that persistency which insures a profitable year's work.

All experience and experiments have shown that cows will give more milk and keep in better condition if fed grain when on pasture. Some experiments show that there is no immediate profit from feeding grain, the cow merely paying for the feed at good market prices, but only the short sighted man would fail to feed because of this, for it is the after effects that give the profit.

The one who looks ahead realizes that winter will come before his cows freshen again and if they have been allowed to decrease in milk flow during the summer, when milk is cheap, they cannot be induced to give a large yield when milk is high. In fact, there is but one conclusion to draw and one answer to the question as to whether it pays to feed cows grain on pasture or at any other time. If in order to keep cows milking persistently and at their best it is necessary to feed grain, then it is advisable and profitable to do so, provided good cows are kept under comfortable conditions, for none other than large, persistent milk and butter fat production pays.

Treatment For Calf Scours. Give castor oil in milk to clear the irritant from the digestive tract, then mix in each pint of milk fed daily a teaspoonful of a mixture of half an ounce of formaldehyde in fifteen and a half ounces of freshly boiled water. Triple sulphocarbolates, to be bought at the drug store, would also be likely to help in such a case of scours, due to bacterial action in the intestines.—Hoard's Dairyman.

Heifers Holding Up Milk. Kindness is about the only thing that can be followed in preventing a heifer from withholding her milk, as it is commonly called. Withholding of milk is not a voluntary action on the part of a cow, but an involuntary action, and for that reason kindness must be followed in order to put the heifer in an attitude so she will not withhold her milk.

Start of Coffee Industry in Java. Down to 1800 the only source of coffee supply was Arabia; but in that year Governor Van Hoorne of the Dutch East India company received some coffee seeds from traders who piled between the Arabian gulf and Java. These seeds were planted and thrived so well that the industry of coffee-growing soon made Java one of the richest possessions under the control of the historic Dutch East India company.
